Risk Analysis

The Group's risk of affecting the environment and the climate, employee relations and social conditions, human rights and anti-corruption is assessed to be limited. The risk assessment has been carried out in such a way that selected topics are analysed for their potential risk. In this context, risk is a product of the topic's proportional role in the daily activities, and the probable negative impact the topic may have. To the extent that risks have been identified in the individual areas, they are reported with the relevant policies.
